Last week leaders of the European Union had a summit to discuss measures to solve the debt crisis that is affecting the Eurozone. European leaders agreed new rules for the Eurozone, giving the EU more control over the budgets of countries in the Eurozone.

Britain is not in the Eurozone, so would not have been directly affected by the new rules. However amending the European Union treaties to adopt the new rules would have needed the agreement of all European Union countries including Britain.

At the summit David Cameron vetoed the Treaty as other countries would not allow a British optout from EU regulations on financial services that could have damaged the City of London.

As a result other EU countries will now go ahead with the proposed rules in a separate agreement that does not include Britain.
