The Serious Organised Crime Agency has compiled a list naming more than 100 firms that have used private investigators to illegally hack or blag information. They have given the list to a Parliamentary committee, but the names on it have not been published because criminal investigations may still be underway against those named

Parliament currently has two chambers, the House of Commons and the House of Lords.

Currently the House of Lords is mostly made up of people appointed by the political parties or by the House of Lords Appointments Commission, which nominates independent Lords. The House of Lords also has seats for senior Church of England bishops and 92 remaining hereditary peers.

Some people have suggested replacing the House of Lords with a mostly or wholly elected chamber, other people think it should be left as it is or abolished entirely

What would you most like to see?

The House of Lords left as an APPOINTED chamber

The House of Lords replaced with a chamber that is part ELECTED, part APPOINTED

The House of Lords replaced with a chamber that is wholly ELECTED

The House of Lords ABOLISHED entirely
